WM. H. BRERETON, Esq.

THIS Company has been formed for the purpose of carrying on the Business of Sugar Refining under the British Patent, and also the Business of Sugar Refining, Manufacturing and Sugar Dealers generally at Hongkong and Swatow in China.

By the Weirich process the molasses and other impurities are speedily and inexpensively removed, leaving the residue a fine Sugar fit for domestic use or for exportation to any part of the world. It is highly valued and sought after by Chinese and Japanese merchants.
These Sugars are perfectly in odourous, and retain their colour and high saccharine qualities for any length of time, and they are not liable to absorb moisture.

It is intended that the new Company shall take over the ground and buildings at Hongkong, now occupied by the Oriental Sugar Refinery, with the Plant and Machinery thereon. The ground, which has a water frontage of nearly 200 feet, comprises nearly two acres. The Buildings and Works are quite new and in complete order, capable of refining about 1,000 piculs of raw Sugar daily. It is also intended to take over the ground and premises belonging to the Company at Swatow in China, with the valuable Plant and Machinery thereon. The last mentioned ground contains about 18 acres, with excellent water frontage, and is otherwise elegantly situated for carrying on the Company's works.

The works and buildings are yet unfinished; when completed they will be capable of refining about 1,500 piculs of Raw Sugar daily. They will be finished before the next Sugar season, or about the 31st of December next.

The Proprietors of the Oriental Sugar Refinery have agreed to sell the whole of their Property in Hongkong and Swatow to the Company for $500,000, of which $250,000 will be taken in shares, subject only to a share of profits, by way of Royalty, to be paid to the Patentee for the sole right of using the Patent in Hongkong and China. Of the balance of the capital about $100,000 will be applied in finishing the Company's premises at Swatow, leaving the remaining $150,000 available for working the business.

It is intended to distribute the profits in the following manner:—Twelve per cent.
for interest on capital in the first instance be annually paid thereout to all Shareholders, seven per cent. will be written off the annual valuation of Plant, and five per cent. will be written off the annual valuation of Buildings, which together will form the Company's reserve fund to meet depreciation in Plant and Buildings. The surplus after these deductions will be distributed as follows:—viz., two thirds thereof will be divided pro rata amongst the Shareholders by way of dividend, and the remaining one-third will be paid to the Patentee.

The Company will be managed by the firm of H. KILMER & Co. of Hongkong, as General Agents, and a Consulting Committee to be elected by the Shareholders, assisted by a competent staff. Messrs.
Craig & Co. of Swatow will be the Agents of the Company at that place.

The Company has secured the services of a thoroughly efficient Practical Refiner and Chemist from the works of Mr James Duncan, the eminent Sugar Refiner of Glasgow, London.

The Refinery in Hongkong is now in full working order, and will be so handed over to the Company on the 31st day of March instant.

The Company in purchasing the Oriental Sugar Refineries will take the business as it stands, together with all the engagements and contracts already entered into, comprising arrangements for the purchase of Raw Sugar, and disposing of the finished Product in the various markets.

The Oriental Sugar Refinery, Limited, will have the advantage of a choice of markets: The Patent Sugars meet with ready sale at remunerative prices, in Great Britain, the Continent of Europe, America, and Australia, whilst the native trade is being steadily developed. In fact the Sugar trade in China is now in its infancy, and of its future success there can be no doubt whatever.

The favourable terms upon which the Company have been offered the property and sole right to use the Patent are all a source of security to the Shareholders, and a proof of the confidence of those whose enterprise and capital have originated the business.

The Memorandum and Articles of Association may be inspected at the Office of the Company, together with the following Agreement, viz:—

—An Agreement of the 2nd of September, 1878, made between the Oriental Intimations.

Sugar Refinery of Hongkong and the Wing
Tung Hing Hong for the supply of Raw Material on certain terms and conditions.
2.—An Agreement of the 26th day of March, 1878, made between Hans Kier on behalf of the owners of the Oriental Sugar Refinery at Hongkong and Swatow, the one part, and Robert Craig, Esq. for and on behalf of the Company of the other part, whereby the party of the first part agrees to sell to the Company the above-mentioned premises.

3.—An Agreement of the 25th day of March 1878, made between William Mc-Gregor Smith of the one part, and Hans Kier of the other part, whereby the said William McGregor Smith agreed to make over to the Company the sole right of using the said Patent in Hongkong and China on the terms therein mentioned.
It is intended that the whole of the Capital shall be called up as follows:—

$150 per Share on application for allotment.
$150 per Share on allotment.
$100 one calendar month after allotment.
$100 three calendar months after allotment.

Applications for shares will be received up to 10th day of April, 1878.
Forms of application for Shares and Receipt for Deposit are appended.

General Memoranda.

WEDNESDAY, April 10:—

Goods per Djemnah undelivered after Noon, subject to rent and landing charges.

Corp of Telegram received from Captain Barlow, S. S. Nizam:
 "Nizam's engines broke down third instant; reached Cape St. James seventh instant; and one engine; repairs will take about eight days; will arrange to send mails by next French steamer."
 BARLOW.

At the special sitting of the Supreme Court in Criminal Session held to-day, Ho Atung, a cook, pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing a binocular glass, the property of the third officer of the P. & O. S. S. Orissa. There were seven previous convictions against the prisoner, which he also admitted; and he was sentenced to five years' penal servitude.

THE S.S. Dago, Captain Haddock, arrived here to-day from Rangoon. The Dago is a new vessel built by Mr. J. Laird, to the order of Messrs D. G. Pinkey & Sons of Sunderland, the inventors of the patent topsails. She is consigned to Messrs Meyer & Co., and will probably remain on the Coast of China and Japan for some time. The following are her dimensions:—Length over all 292 feet, between perpendiculars 282 feet, extreme breadth 34 feet, depth of hold to top of floors 25 feet. Her gross tonnage is 1,860 and net 1,250. She is engaged by Mr. George Clark, of Sunderland, with a pair of compound surface condensing engines of 160 H. P. nominal, and consumes from 12 to 13 tons of coal per day.

THE P. & O. Company are very fortunate in their freedom from accidents, or we might say very careful to prevent accidents; and it is not often now-a-days we have to wait for our letters through any mishap to their steamers. It is now three years since the Gwalior broke down, and since that time we have had little to complain of, what little delays there have been having resulted from adverse winds and bad weather. The accident to the Nizam is not so serious as we at first supposed, the break being of a minor nature; and we are inclined to think the crank shaft is broken. The S.S. Paros left Cape St. James at 7 p.m. of the 3rd, the day the accident happened, but the Nizam being to the southward, nothing was seen of her. The S.S. State of Alabama may be expected to put in an appearance on Thursday with the mail.

SOME time since, in noticing an accident which occurred on board the steamer Kishan, we drew attention to the very dangerous state of the landing stages, and suggested that guards should be placed on both sides of the stages. We were glad to see that this was done. The same suggestion is applicable to the Ichang landing stages, which are, in their present condition, positively dangerous. To-day a coolie nearly lost his life through the absence of such a precaution. He slipped and fell over the stage, but managed to catch hold of the railing of the steamer and was thus possibly saved from a watery grave. Had he slipped whilst there was a great rush of passengers he might not have been so fortunate. We think that it is imperative on steamer owners to take every possible precaution to prevent accidents, and the inexpensiveness of the remedy we suggest should recommend itself.

THE departure of Mr. Chun Ayin, formerly on the staff of the China Mail and lessee of the Chinese Mail, in the steamer Fuyue this afternoon, was made the subject of a considerable demonstration on the part of his native friends. Mr. Ayin has gone to Shanghai, there to join the Mission to Peru or the United States, but his rank, though it will undoubtedly be an honourable one, is as yet undecided. His general ability, knowledge of the English language and of the manners and customs of the West, together with his unusual fund of general information, will doubtless stand him in good stead and ensure his rapid promotion in the service he has entered. Not a little of the intelligent breadth of Mr. Ayin's views on most matters is attributable to his habits of general reading formed and fostered by the existence of a library attached to St. Paul's College in its palmy days. It seems strange that no such institution yet exists in connection with the Central School, and that native teachers in that establishment have never even heard of the first Napoleon. But to return to Mr. Ayin, and the appreciation which his abilities and character have received at the hands of his countrymen. He has been feted for the last ten days, sometimes at half-a-dozen places a day, and a keen competition has been going on amongst the respectable Chinese to do honour to the man who of all their fellow-colonists (with probably one exception) has become thoroughly acquainted with things foreign without altogether losing his own national characteristics. A steat-lunch was provided by his friends to convey him to the steamer, and as she steamed slowly towards the Fuyue, the crackers and bombs of good-will and good-fellowship were conspicuous in their din.

Police Intelligence.

(Both Magistrates sitting.)
 8th April, 1878.

DRUNKENNESS.
 George Walker, a fireman belonging to the S.S. Moray, was discharged with a caution.

Joe Jean, French barque Jean Pierre, was fined $2. He was very violent when arrested.

James Robertson, fireman S.S. Ayyl, was ordered to pay 30 cents boat-hire.

Radolf Arnold, seaman American ship Chandos, was fined $1 or 2 days' imprisonment. He was very violent, and chasing people about the street when arrested.

James Lee, seaman American ship Grant, was fined 50 cents and ordered to pay 20 cents amends to a hawk for damage done to property. It appears that he was mad-drunk and while in this state took some matches and cheroots from a hawk's stall and refused to pay for them.

Andrew Zahren, seaman, and Lewis Wilson, carpenter, American barque Cruiser, were charged with being drunk and disorderly. They gave a great deal of trouble to the Constables who arrested them. After they were locked up they were very noisy, especially the 2nd defendant, who made use of very filthy language. The 1st defendant was fined 50 cents, and the 2nd, $1.

LARCENY.
 Li Asam, a coolie, was sent to two months' hard labour for stealing a board from the Commissary Godowns at Wanchi. There was one previous conviction against him for larceny, which he admitted.

PRIVATE CHAIR-COOLIES.
 Law Cheung, a chair-coolie employed by Mr. A. E. Vaucher, was charged with refusal of duty. It appears that he usually carried his master, and when requested to carry his mistress yesterday he refused. In defence he said that he was eating his meal at the time, and he did not belong to the mistress' but to the master's chair. Fined $1 or 2 days' imprisonment.

INDUCENT ASSAULT.
 Wong Yih, chair-coolie to Mr. Hoffman, was charged with indecently assaulting a girl, aged 15 years, in the public streets. He denied the charge and said that he quarrelled with the girl because she stopped to stare at him when he was paying away some money. A woman appeared and corroborated the girl's statement. Seven days' hard labour.

MENDICANCY.
 Several mendicants were ordered to be sent away to-day.

THE POLICE REPORT.

The following report from the Acting Captain Superintendent of Police, for the year 1878, is published in the Government Gazette of Saturday last:—

CENTRAL POLICE BARRACKS, VICTORIA, HONGKONG, 16th February, 1878.

SIR,—I have the honour to forward the Criminal Statistics and other Annual Returns of this Department for 1877, for transmission to His Excellency the Governor.

2.—Compared with the previous year, there has been an increase of 491 cases in serious offences, 361 in minor offences, and 842 cases or 12.88 per cent., in the total number of offences coming under the notice of the Police.

3.—There is little doubt that the famine and floods on the mainland and the unusually high price of the rice throughout the year have caused much of the crime against property to which the increase in serious offences is chiefly due. Turning to Table C it will be found that while robbery with violence, burglary, and larceny in a dwelling house at night have decreased, unlawful possession and larceny show an increase of 446 on the number of cases reported during the previous year; many of these larcenies relate to property of very small value, and of all the cases in which the amount has been given 35 per cent. are thefts of articles valued at less than $5.

4.—Of the five cases of murder, two arose out of piratical attacks on villages. The first of these occurred about midnight on the 2nd May, when 20 armed men attacked a chandler's shop in the village of Ap-Li-Chau; Ching-Hun-Tai, one of the inmates of the shop, received a gunshot wound which subsequently caused his death. The pirates carried off property valued at $84, together with one of their comrades who had been shot by the Indian constable on duty. The night being dark, their boat was out of sight before the Inspector could cross the bay with assistance from the Aberdeen Police Station. The second occurred on the night of the 15th October, when a band of robbers, who had landed from a boat on the eastern shore of Tein-Shan-Pai, broke into and plundered the house of a boat-builder in the village of Mong-Kok-Tai; Kwok-Sing-Kit, one of the shop coolies, died two days afterwards of a wound received during the attack.

5.—I believe the increase in kidnapping to be only apparent, the total for the past year having been swelled by an unusually large number of suspicious cases brought to trial by the Police, which upon investigation at the Magistracy, proved to be unfounded.

6.—Verdicts of felon de se were returned at no less than thirteen coroners' Inquests during the year.

7.—Judging from the reports of native traders, I fear that piracy is steadily increasing. As regards minor offences, it will be seen that the increase is caused by an advance of nearly 50 per cent. in the number of nuisance cases, and by the large number of Chinese arrested for being out at night without a pass, for assault, and for public gambling. The latter offence, which for reasons explained in my special Report of 8th December 1877 (O. S. O. No. 2,580), had rapidly increased during the months of May and June, has now been reduced within narrow limits.

8.—The daily average number of prisoners in gaol during the year was 895, compared with 488, the average number during 1876.

9.—The conduct of both officers and men has been exceptionally good, and it is satisfactory to find from Table D that in the entire force only 29 were dismissed for misconduct during the year.

10.—The large number of vacancies in the European branch, which for several months affected the efficiency of the force, was remedied in October last by the arrival of twenty well-conducted and intelligent men, who had been carefully selected by Inspector Thomson from the Glasgow Police.

11.—The defective force continues to work faithfully and well, but the great difficulty of getting Chinese to come forward as witnesses is found a serious obstacle to bringing criminals to justice; a more liberal system of compensating witnesses for time lost in attendance at Court, would remove one cause of their dislike to give evidence in criminal cases.

12.—On several occasions, Chinese officials have rendered valuable assistance to this Department. In two cases they have assisted in recovering large sums of money from criminals who escaped from British jurisdiction, but were subsequently traced to villages in Chinese territory.

13.—A system of mounted and foot road patrols, which was established between the different outlying villages in June last, has had most satisfactory results in suppressing highway robbery, which was becoming frequent.

14.—We are indebted to the Naval and Military authorities for the use of Rifle Ranges at Kowloon, which has enabled all members of the force, including the Chinese, who were not previously instructed in the use of the rifle, to go through a course of target practice.

15.—Having regard to the great expense and numerous defects of the telegraph instruments now supplied to this Department, I think the Telephone might be substituted with advantage. This instrument appears to be in many respects superior to the Telegraph for Police purposes.

16.—I had the honour to make special Reports to His Excellency the Governor on the following subjects:—

I.—The defective accommodation in many of the Police buildings.

II.—The purchase of Steam Launches for Harbour Police work.

III.—The enrolment of Special Constables for the better protection of some of the outlying villages.

IV.—I enclose Mr. Falconer's Annual Report on the Police School.

I have the honour to be, Sir, Your most obedient Servant,

C. V. CREAGH,
 Acting Captain Superintendent of Police.
 The Hon. J. Gardiner Austin, C.M.G.,
 Colonial Secretary, &c., &c., &c.

POLICE SCHOOL, HONGKONG,
 1st February, 1878.

SIR,—I have the honour to forward for your perusal the report on the Police School for the year ending 31st December, 1877.

2.—During the year, the school has been pursuing a quiet course of usefulness. The sad death of Mr. Gair has been a great loss to the school; his intimate knowledge of police work, and his excellence as a teacher, made his services especially valuable, and it was a difficult matter to fill his place satisfactorily. Mr. Duggan, however, since his appointment, has performed his duties well, and increased experience will make him a very valuable teacher.

3.—Mr. Cheung-a-Leung, who left for a post in the Chinese Mission to Japan, was succeeded by Mr. Chiu-Chi-Tsang.

4.—As a large number of Europeans now possess exemption certificates, and a considerable number have left the Colony on the expiration of their term of service, the attendance has been small, but as only three of the last draft succeeded in passing the examination I expect a larger attendance during 1878. The number of men who presented themselves during the year for examination was 19, of whom 18 passed and the remainder failed. A feature worthy of note in the examinations of this year is that a number of those who passed consisted of men whose education had been neglected in early life, but who are now qualified for promotion, which they could never hope to obtain but for the education received at the school.

5.—To make the teaching of the Europeans as practical as possible, I have introduced the Police Regulations as text book, and have made the writing of Reports a weekly exercise.

6.—There have been two examinations of the Indian Constables during the year, one to test their knowledge of English and Chinese in order to select two intelligent men for Corporalships; the other was the ordinary Annual Examination. The first examination has produced a most satisfactory effect. The fact that a knowledge of English and Chinese led to promotion has caused a greater interest to be taken in these studies by a larger number of men, and accordingly I am able to report a marked progress on the part of the Indians during the year, and at the examination at its close much higher results were obtained than at the examinations of previous years. I may note that one Indian Corporal passed the European examination.

7.—The end of the year the attendance of the Constables was considerably diminished in consequence of ball practice at Kowloon, but this was partly compensated by the attendance of Indian Candidates, who, while waiting for a vacancy in the force, employ their leisure in the study of English and Chinese.

8.—I have to make the same Report on the Chinese Constables that has been made in previous years. They make good progress in the time they are allowed to come to school; in some instances more than can be reasonably expected under the circumstances. Still, as long as promotions are made from the ranks to Interpreterships, so long will these men make up by private study for the loss of school time of which the exigencies of the service deprive them.

Three Interpreters have been taken from the school, and one English-speaking Lascar transferred for service to the Gael department during the year.

9.—In conclusion, I beg to throw out the suggestion that the scheme of quarterly examinations, as so attended as to comprise promotions to Sergeantships and even to higher positions in the service. Such a scheme would induce many of the more studious men to prosecute their studies after their attendance at school is no longer compulsory. I am sure that if it were understood that a higher grade certificate formed a factor in selection for promotion, a very large number of men would work to obtain it.

The following are the Statistics for the year:—

NATIONALITY.	MONTHLY AVERAGE.
Europeans.....	188
Indians.....	124
Chinese.....	75

I have the honour to be, Sir, Your most obedient Servant,

ALEXANDER FALCONER,
 Master in Charge.

PRINCE BISMARCK ON THE EASTERN CRISIS.

On Tuesday, Prince Bismarck explained the views of the German Government with regard to the Eastern Question. Referring to the Russian conditions, he said that the delimitation proposed with regard to Bulgaria was not of such importance as to imperil the peace of Europe. German interests were not affected by the arrangements proposed for Montenegro, Roumania, Servia, the Herzegovina, &c. With regard to the Dardanelles, more apprehensions had been raised than were justified by actual possibilities. The regulations respecting ships of war were scarcely so important as those respecting commerce. Germany's chief interest in the East was that the Danube and the Straits should be free as heretofore. In conclusion, Prince Bismarck said he did not believe in a European war. Germany was in favour of hastening the meeting of the Conference, and it would perhaps meet in the first fortnight of March. Germany had no desire to intervene as arbitrator of Europe, but she was willing to mediate. The speech lasted nearly an hour and in recent years Prince Bismarck has not spoken to better advantage or more acceptably to the House. In a second speech, replying to Herr Windthorst, he showed unusual warmth of manner in repudiating the idea that he was sacrificing the interests of Austria.

(Times, Feb. 20.)

Prince Bismarck yesterday explained to the German Parliament the view he takes of the position of Germany in the present crisis, and a speech of greater interest to Europe has rarely been delivered. Its main result appears to be that Germany will as far as possible abstain from any interference in the Eastern Question. Prince Bismarck does not see that her interests are at present directly affected, and he declares, with characteristic plainness, that Germany having been connected with Russia for so many years by the ties of "sincere and mutually profitable alliance," he, for one, would think twice before giving up the friendship of so great and powerful a State without real necessity. He states that no foreign Government has as yet asked Germany to oppose Russia in the present crisis, and he emphatically intimates that no indirect or secondary interest would induce Germany to take such a course. He repudiates the advice that the Germans should assume the part of European policemen, and announces their resolve to resist Russian usurpation. "They knew how much Russian political parties were given to declamation, and they could easily imagine what they would say against them were they to prevent their reaching the goal they have been pursuing for centuries." At present political parties friendly to Germany are in power throughout Europe, and he asks whether the Parliament is prepared to jeopardize the peace of Germany for the sake of securing the peace of one of their friends. An Empire situated in the midst of Europe had better, he said, be cautious at such a time as this. Germany, he concluded, was no doubt strong; "but only if their own independence, their own interests were at stake, should he advise the Emperor to unsheath the sword."

It seems impossible to mistake the significance of these avowals, which are marked by Prince Bismarck's usual decision and business. There is a reserve about them on some points which was probably unavoidable; but their main result may be briefly stated. Prince Bismarck, it is evident, does not see anything in the proposed terms of peace which in the interests of Germany he need object to; and he is not prepared to risk German blood or treasure for any other interests. It is observable that he abstains from any repetition of the assurance he previously gave that, if Austrian interests should be affected, Germany would not be indifferent. His policy was accurately described by Lord Beaconsfield at the commencement of the Session. It is, no doubt, a patriotic, but whether in a good or bad sense, it is also a selfish policy. Russia has a certain goal at heart which she has been pursuing for centuries; and Prince Bismarck, as a prudent man, is not prepared to incur the risk of obstructing her for the sake of any other interests than his own.

The practical result is that Germany will go into the Congress lending her moral support to the general terms of peace proposed by Russia, but not prepared to obstruct any other Power in resisting them. She is strong enough to stand aloof, and her position, perhaps, is not very different from that which she assumed at the time of the Crimean War. It can hardly be said that this attitude will add anything to the chances of peace being maintained; but it need not be regarded as throwing any adverse weight into the scale. Germany is simply eliminated from the calculations, and the issue rests between Russia, Austria, and England.

The topics touched on by the German Chancellor indicate the position Germany will take respecting them. The Chancellor somewhat contemptuously throws to the countries bordering on the Mediterranean one of the difficult questions which Russia has raised. So long as the Dardanelles are not in the hands of Russia, a matter which does not arise now, and so long as the waterways are kept open to commerce, the question of the passing of war ships in time of peace is to Germany a minor matter. The official documents from St. Petersburg reproduced on this point of the freedom of the Straits to commercial vessels the stipulations of the Treaty of Paris and the Mediterranean Powers—England being, of course, the chief of them—must, he says, settle about the war ships among themselves. None of the other proposals are held to touch German interests, which the Chancellor declares not to be affected by the independence of Montenegro, Roumania, and Servia, by the improved position of Bosnia, Herzegovina, and the other provinces, nor by the re-arrangement of Bulgaria. The restoration of the Turkish rule in Bulgaria has become practically impossible, and any attempt to do so would, as Prince Bismarck intimates, only leave the task of reorganization in the hands of the Power which should succeed in driving Russia out.

(Daily Telegraph, Feb. 20.)

Taking up the terms of peace, officially communicated to him only the day before, Prince Bismarck examines them to ascertain whether they affect Germany, and the result of his meditations—of course, upon the unofficial copy long ago before him—is that they do not injure the Teutonic Empire. But he is careful to remind a listening Senate that every item of the conditions which bears on existing treaties will require the sanction of the Powers who signed those instruments; and while he makes light of the apprehensions felt respecting the Bosphorus and the Dardanelles, he lays it down that the key of the Straits must be held by independent hands. These are interesting observations of no special novelty, yet valuable so far as they imply, in part at least, a concurrence of opinion between Germany and the other Powers. But if the Danube, the Black Sea and the Straits are to be "free as they have been hitherto," they cannot be left at the control of Russia. An express reference is made to the Treaties; yet no one can say whether the projected treaty, now in course of negotiation at Adrianople, will touch or leave untouched the elder compacts, unless the whole arrangement is unreservedly submitted to the inspection of that Conference which Prince Bismarck cordially welcomes and which he seems so certain will meet. Should war ensue, Germany will stand aloof unless her interests are imperilled; a statement containing no fresh information, since it has been reiterated on every occasion. The net result of his deliverance is that Prince Bismarck is eager for a Conference or Congress; that he is prepared to mediate and act as the common friend; that Austria must await the issue of the experiment; and that hopes of a peaceful solution are still entertained in Berlin.

QUICK MAILS.

(To the Editor of the Melbourne Argus.)
 Sir,—Having just completed the fastest tour that has ever been made from London to the colonies and back, at the request of some friends I take the liberty of forwarding you a brief report of the trip, believing that it will be of interest to your readers.

On Monday, August 13, I left London for Plymouth, and embarked in the S. S. Chimborazo, getting away the same night. We had a good run and fine weather to St. Vincent, which we reached in a little over seven days. The arrangements for coaling were anything but good, and we were detained there 30 hours. I think 10 hours should have been quite sufficient. We then had strong head winds with fine weather nearly all the way to Adelaide, our calls being of little service. At Adelaide we were detained 17 hours, when six or seven might have done. We then proceeded to Melbourne, and were landed on the Sandridge railway pier at 7 o'clock on Friday morning, September 28. I transacted the business which necessitated my visit, and left again for Plymouth, and O. Company's steamer Skam on Thursday, October 4. We arrived at Adelaide on the morning of the 6th, and remained 18 hours (six should have been enough). We then had a quick run to King George's Sound, but here, also, detention was much too great, 22 hours. Then a splendid run to Galle, where we arrived late on Monday, October 22. The China steamer not having arrived, we could not leave again until Thursday night late, thus having been detained three days, when 10 or 12 hours would have been ample. We continued to have good weather, and arrived at Aden on November 2nd, and were again detained 24 hours. We next reached Suva early on November 9th, and here again were obliged to wait 30 hours for the arrival of the steamer from Bombay. From Suva to Alexandria occupied 12 hours by rail. Alexandria to Brindisi in three and a half days. Brindisi to London two and a half days, completing the journey on Saturday morning, November 17th, at 6 o'clock.

The trip from London to Melbourne by the Chimborazo occupied 45 days, including two days' detention. The return trip occupied 44 days, including detentions equal to more than seven days, when with proper despatch two would have been ample. The six and a half days in Melbourne make a total of 96 days that I was absent from London.

THE NEGOTIATIONS FOR THE ARMISTICE.

The Hamburgischer Correspondent, a trustworthy German paper, well informed in Russian politics, publishes a letter from a correspondent at Varna, showing how the Russians delayed negotiations at Kezanlik in order to gain time to reduce the whole country up to the gates of Constantinople to subjection. The correspondent says that his story may be fully trusted, and promises to supply similar dates as to the negotiations at Adrianople. The negotiations of Kezanlik, says the correspondent, lasted ten days, which passed as follows:—The day of the arrival of Server Pasha and Namyk Pasha at Kezanlik was wet, cold, and boisterous. The envoys were received by a Russian colonel, who conducted with them on their sufferings and requested them to devote that day to rest. Server replied that, tired as he was, he would follow the colonel directly to the Grand Duke's quarters to open negotiations. The colonel's reply, as firm as it was courteous, was to the effect that the Grand Duke had expected his guests would be desirous of rest on the first day of their stay with him, and had made his arrangements accordingly. They could not see him on that day. At an early hour the next day Server sent to inquire from the Grand Duke at what hour he would please to receive the Sultan's plenipotentiaries. The same officer presented himself at 10 a.m., and regretted to inform the Turkish delegates that military circumstances had compelled the Grand Duke to leave early that morning for Yeniköy, where he might stay for a day or two. Thus the second day passed in the first. The third day likewise passed in much the same way, the time to settle minor points of negotiation; but he was informed that nothing could be done until the envoys had been officially received by the Grand Duke. The fourth and fifth days passed in idleness. On the morning of the sixth day the Grand Duke returned, and about noon he sent two staff officers to say that, unless the Turkish Excellencies should desire otherwise, he would receive them officially on the next day. About noon on the seventh day the plenipotentiaries were received, produced their credentials, which were considered satisfactory, and proposed to enter at once upon negotiation for a cessation of hostilities. They had been informed at Constantinople that these negotiations were to be carried on along with those for peace; but they suggested that the six days' delay, occasioned by a departure from that condition, and being about an immediate cessation of hostilities. The Grand Duke replied that he was without instructions on that head; and said he was going to send an inquiry by telegraph at once, to which, he thought, he could promise to receive an answer in the course of the same night. But the night passed away, and there was no answer. The anxiety of the plenipotentiaries did nothing to accelerate communication between Petersburg and Kezanlik, and the eighth day was passed in waiting. In the morning of the ninth day the Grand Duke invited the Turkish delegates to go and see him. Server and Namyk revived, thinking business should now be commenced in earnest. But the Grand Duke had an unexpected communication in store for them. He told them Adrianople was the historical place of negotiations between Turkey and Russia, and therefore he cordially invited them to meet him there. Server Pasha attempted a timorous objection, but he was met by the declaration of the Grand Duke that he had indispensable business at Adrianople, and must either negotiate at that place or not at all. He invited the pashas to travel in his own carriage, and thus, on the tenth day of these mock negotiations, at eleven o'clock in the morning, the Grand Duke Nicholas and the Turkish plenipotentiaries took their departure from Kezanlik for Adrianople. Thus the Russians gained ten full days, in the meantime beating the army of Süleiman Pasha, and becoming masters of the country between Philippopolis and Adrianople; while the Porte, for weeks in possession of a promise to treat for peace, relaxed her exertions and was reduced to helplessness.
